Flood Believed to Have Passed Crest in S. West

Over 100 Lives Lost, Millions in Property Damage

KAW RIVER FALLING

Empties Into Missouri—Big Wheat Damage Reported

KANSAS CITY.—(AP)—The last link in a path of desolation nearly a thousand miles long was completed Friday as the flood-crest Kaw river began pouring into the already overflowing Missouri.

The loss of over 100 lives and millions of dollars in property damage marked the passing of flood waters down the raging Kaw river.

Unless heavy rains fall in the next day or two it is believed the Missouri and Kansas rivers will recede steadily. The Kaw's floodtide reached Kansas City Thursday night and poured into the Missouri river. The crest was about six feet below the tops of the levees and army engineers doubted there would be a serious break or any widespread flooding in the urban districts.

Immediately outside of Kansas City, Kan., and stretching westward for miles the river had inundated thousands of acres of farm land, however, and it will be slow in draining because of the saturated condition of the soil.

The Missouri river flood now is worst in the stretch from Jefferson City to the Mississippi, above St. Louis. Aerial surveys show it three to five miles wide in most places covering virtually all land between the bluffs.

Crops at the University of Missouri estimated Friday that 500,000 acres are under water, the major portion of it wheat to which will be a total loss. Alfalfa losses included 50,000 acres.

In Kansas the damage is expected to run around $10,000,000 and Nebraska, where the heaviest loss of life occurred, places its damage at over $12,000,000. Colorado, where the floods began, sustained damage of about $10,000,000.

Two Million Asked by Census Bureau

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A request by the census bureau for a $2,000,000 slice of the $4,000,000 work relief fund to set up an alphabetical card index of every person listed in the 1930 census was announced Friday by the information section.

The huge compilation, arranged by geographic units and families, would be used in checking claims for old age pensions. The census bureau proposed to locate the indexing job at Philadelphia "to relieve the pressure for office space in Washington, and to have a wider selection of unemployed personnel."

Included in 34 other applications for a total of $28,281,810 were plans to eradicate the barberry and cattle fever tick, a proposal for a $1,000,000 census annex, and numerous conservation projects.

Description of Hideout Is Given by Weyerhaeuser Youth

TACOMA, Wash.—(AP)—Search for the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers spread Friday to San Francisco and Montana as a high Department of Justice official assumed command of the hunt.

Harold J. Nathan, John Edgar Hoover's assistant, flew here to lead the quest for the abductors. Jack Bailey and Herbert Lester Johnstone, wanted for questioning in the case, were reported seen in Prisma, Montana.

The outlaw usually gets most of his publicity before the law catches up with him. Once he is safely locked away in prison he drops out of sight, and that, in some ways, is too bad. If his dreary, monotonous years behind the bars could get the same attention his lawless forays got, he might lose a good deal of his glamour in the eyes of impressionable youth.

This thought pops up when one reads a brief news dispatch telling how former underworld "gun molls" have settled down to the use of mop and broom in the federal detention prison at Milan, Mich. Here are such women as Kathryn Kelly, Evelyn Frechette, Winona Burdette, and others whose association with big shot public enemies made them front page celebrities.

A day-dreaming, empty-headed youngster might have seen something romantic in these women when they were in their hey-day. But to look at them now—clad in drab prison uniforms, mopping floors and working in the fields—ought to be convincing evidence that the glamour of crime is pretty phony.

Shortage Found Clerk's Record

Sebastian Officer Short $546.59—Charge Is Denied

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—State Comptroller Griffin Smith announced Thursday that an audit of the accounts of the office of Paul Lynch, circuit and chancery clerk of Sebastian county, showed a shortage of $546.59.

Comptroller Smith said that the audit revealed that the initiated salary net adopted in November last year was being "flagrantly violated."

The report said that Lynch admitted a shortage of $508.65 when auditors arrived May 20 and explained that Claude Hoffman, veteran deputy clerk, had overdrawn his account. Lynch said he and a friend had discovered the irregularities while examining the books, that the amount would be made good and that Hoffman had been discharged, the audit said.

Inquiries of May 31 confirmed a statement of Lynch that he had negotiated with a Fort Smith bank for an $800 loan to make good the shortage. Comptroller Smith reported. The audit, made under the supervision of J. Bryan Sims, chief county auditor of the comptroller's department, covered the period from January 1, 1935 through May 20. It was made to determine if the new county salary act was being properly administered.

Hoffman in statements to Comptroller Smith denied that he had been discharged by Lynch and said that as far as he knew he was still serving as deputy clerk. He denied that the clerk had ever discussed any shortage with him.

Smith said the salary act providing $3000 salary for the clerk, $1500 for another and $1200 for two others, providing for all fees to be paid to the county treasurer monthly and, for the salaries to be paid by warrants issued by the county court had been "flagrantly disregarded."

"Bank deposits standing to the credit of the clerk's account were used for private purposes almost from the day the first entry was made," the audit said. "Personal obligations of Lynch and Hoffman were cleared through the account with complete disregard for the public characteristic of the funds involved."

"Lynch undertook to show that for many years such tactics had been customary in the clerk's office. It may be pointed out that he was the first clerk to hold office under the new county salary act and he inaugurated the 'customs' of the office."

The comptroller said Lynch had collected some "legal fees" which fell due January 1 and had permitted them to remain in the public account as an unitemized credit.

Offices of Two Agents Closed

Sevier County Is Unable to Meet Expense of Agents

DEQUEEN, Ark.—Offices of the county agent and the home demonstration agent in Sevier county were ordered closed Thursday by District Extension Agent J. L. Wright.

The office was ordered closed, it was reported here, because of the inability of Sevier county, to meet its share of salaries paid County Agent M. F. Stanford and Home Demonstration Agent Madge Poll.

Judge O. Kolb announced a month ago that the county would be financially unable to operate the office and named a committee to solicit funds from county farmers who had received cotton rental checks and other cash benefits from the federal government. Not enough funds were pledged, however, to insure the continuation of the office.

Business men here were in conference with Judge Kolb on Thursday and every effort will be made to continue the activities conducted through this office. The office will not be closed for 10 days so that the county may have the opportunity to raise funds needed to pay the salary of the farm agent, the home demonstration agent and their assistants.

Music Club Goes to Council's Rescue, Will Use City's Piano

Worries of Alderman Deflated With Announcement That Club Would Use City's Newly Acquired Property

"Well, now that we've got the thing what we are going to do with it?" This is the question that has been worrying the city council since they purchased a piano Tuesday night.

Going musical was one thing, but being able to put it in practice was another.

However, their worries were deflated with the announcement Friday of the formation of a community chorus by the Friday Music club, in which the new piano will no doubt play an important part.

A meeting of music lovers has been called for Monday night at city hall to work out the details of this new civic venture and to select tenors, baritone and just plain singers.

Just when the city will need the services of this new organization was not made clear, but undoubtedly some appropriate occasion can be found.

Bursting into song without provocation is still rather frowned upon except possibly when there is a full moon.

It has been suggested that Roy Anderson be selected as leader for the chorus, since he was the only member of the council who turned thumbs down on the city's need for a $175 piano.

House Votes Its Approval to Take Up Stop-Gap Plan

Vote Is 280 to 100 for Immediate Action on New Proposal

WILL LIMIT DEBATE

Says Voluntary Codes Must Conform to Anti-Trust Laws

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Overwhelming approval of a resolution extending a stop-gap NRA organization was clearly forecast Friday when the house voted 280 to 100 to take up the measure immediately and to limit debate to an hour.

Cotton Loan Discussed

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A ten cent loan on cotton and continuance of the present processing tax were among the recommendations submitted Friday to a special cabinet of the Textile committee by the Economic Recovery committee.

President Talks of Codes

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt Friday emphasized that all voluntary codes of fair practice must conform to the anti-trust laws.

He made this statement at a press conference as the house rushed toward passage of legislation to continue a skeletalized NRA until April 1, 1936. It was to permit voluntary codes.

The president said that he believed off hand that many of the voluntary codes conformed to laws, but made it clear that he has no authority to waive fundamental law.

Action Is Sought

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Quick House approval of President Roosevelt's sharply abridged NRA was arranged Thursday night by party leaders.

The legislation was shaped during the day by the House Ways and Means Committee, and approved, 19 to 5. It would continue a portion of the NRA staff until April 1, 1936, as an agency for keeping statistics on business with and without the codes. The resolution would repeal the presidential authority included in the original NRA for prescribing, approving or enforcing codes.

Committee men left the way open for voluntary agreements by which the representatives of an industry would agree upon wage, hour and business practice standards and file them informally with the president.

Possibility of a voluntary agreement system was seen. Despite lack of enthusiasm of President Roosevelt, who feels that a small recalcitrant minority could wreck such a plan, the subject was alive.

Harner Sibley, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Arthur D. Whiteside, president of Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., and a former duty administrator of NRA, praised it.

The steel industry took immediate steps to make it effective. At New York, more than 200 members of the iron and steel industry, representing more than 90 per cent of the productive capacity in that line, decided individually and voluntarily, it was announced, to continue the practices followed under the NRA code.

Announcement was made Friday of the opening of the Diamond cafe in the new Hotel Henry by E. R. Jarvis, who formerly operated the Jarvis cafe on West Second street.

The new cafe is quite spacious and will accommodate 50 people. Mr. Jarvis has made a study of dietetics and food and specializes in carefully planned menus of properly balanced foods.

The chef in the Diamond cafe was head chef at the Como Hotel in Hot Springs for 14 years.

Business Trend Much Improved

Despite NRA Decision Retail Sales Rise to Higher Levels

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The major trends in state and business were toward improvement during the last week, said Dun and Bradstreet Friday in their weekly summary of business conditions.

Progress was evident in many directions in spite of adjustments necessitated by the previous week's developments which terminated the NRA, and "retail sales rose to the highest level in many weeks at a number of centers."

In wholesale markets, the review reported, volume was bolstered entirely by reorders and future commitments were held in abeyance awaiting the establishment of a more definite price trend.

"With the temperatures more seasonable than at any time in the past month," the review continued, "consumer buying broadened rapidly in most parts of the country. Summer wearing apparel for both men and women, sport clothes, beach togs, toiletries, notions and stationery contributed heavily to the week's volume."

"Retail volume for the country as a whole succeeded in reaching an estimated total six to 15 per cent above that of a year ago."

"With the long overdue advent of favorable weather in the Southwest, retail sales were larger by 15 to 20 per cent than a week ahead of the comparative 1934 figures. In the Northwest the gains of recent weeks were extended, sales averaging 10 to 20 per cent higher than a year ago."

In the Middle West, Southern and Pacific Coast areas gains were smaller, according to the review.

The general average of industrial operations indicated the beginning of the summer recession to a moderate degree, and most of the decline in activity, said the summary, was recorded for the divisions identified with the production of automobiles and steel.

Aged Mother Is Among Those to Walk 'Last Mile'

Goes to Gallows Praying for Forgiveness in Murder Plot

SON, 27, FOLLOWS HER

Six Others Pay Penalty for Crimes Against Society

By Associated Press

An aged mother, with one of seven prisoners who paid with their lives Friday for crimes against society.

An eighth sat in a death cell waiting to walk the "last mile" later in the day.

In a misty dawn, Mrs. May H. Carey, 55, first white woman to be hanged in Delaware, walked to the gallows in the Sussex county jail yard and died praying for forgiveness.

She was followed to the gallows by her son, Howard, 27, who was convicted with her of murdering Mrs. Carey's brother, Robert Hitchens, seven years ago for $2,000 in life insurance.

Gang Leader Dies

Murton Miller, 25, leader of a gang which terrorized eastern Massachusetts, was executed at the Massachusetts prison Friday for the murder of a policeman in a bank holdup.

Miller was followed by his brother, Irving, 21, and Abraham Faber. Both were convicted with the elder Miller.

Albert Carr, Houston, Texas, negro, was executed at Huntsville, Texas, for a criminal attack on a white woman.

Thurmond Harris, negro, was electrocuted at Columbia for a criminal assault on a white woman.

Mother Makes Peace

GEORGETOWN, Del.—May H. Carey, 55-year-old mother of three sons, has "made her peace with God" and will walk unafraid to the gallows at dawn, Friday.

Her eldest son, Howard, 27, will follow. He was accepted religion and is prepared to die.

Prison officials said both mother and son have shown deep remorse, but under the guidance of spiritual advisors are holding up well.

The mother and son were convicted of slaying Robert H. Hitchens, of Franklin, Del., for a $2,000 life insurance policy. Hitchens was Mrs. Carey's brother.

Another son, involved in the killing, James, 23, was in solitary confinement in the Newcastle jail serving a life sentence. Prison attaches said he spent most of his time praying for his mother and brother.

A third son, Lawrence, 21, is in the Sussex jail, awaiting trial on charges of assault with intent to kill in connection with a burglary.

V. F. Williams Joins Great Southern Life

Announcement was made Friday that V. F. Williams, who has represented the New York Life Insurance Co. in this district for the past two years, has been appointed to represent the Great Southern Life Insurance Co., in this district with headquarters in Hope.

Mr. Williams is well known in Hope and vicinity and since his coming to Hope has been very active in church and civic affairs.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened Friday to eight points higher on light buying by the trade and professionals.

July opened at 11.59, October at 11.25 and December at 11.29 and extended first call prices a point or two during the early period.

Traders entered the dealings at a slow pace during the first hour but prices held up well.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, 6 to 9 points advance on higher Liverpool cables and trade and commission house buying. July 11.62; October 11.33; December 11.33; January 11.40; March 11.45; May 11.48.

Cotton Purchase Made

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Oscar Johnston, manager of the cotton pool, announced Friday the purchase of 25,400 bales of certified stock cotton from owners, and said the pool stood ready to purchase 20,000 additional bales.

By reason of the certification, he said, the cotton is eligible for tender against future contracts. The pool pays the owners the July price as quoted on the New York stock exchange, the purchase being on contract terms, less carrying charges.

Johnston said it is the pool's purpose to "hold this certificated cotton in order that it may be tendered against July contracts in the event the July contracts are forced to an abnormal relationship to October contracts."

Heart Most Efficient, Most Durable Engine

Beating on an average 3600 times in an hour or over 30,000,000 times in a year, the heart is one of the most powerful engines known to science. It is the most marvelous engine because it never stops completely until death.

Each time your heart beats, about three ounces of blood are delivered to the large blood vessels which carry the blood to the outermost parts of the body. Therefore, over six quarts of blood leave your heart every hour, and it actually handles about 36 gallons a day.

The heart develops 2½ horsepower per day, exerting enough energy to raise 56 pounds one foot per minute, or to move 40½ tons one foot per day. Yet the entire organ is actually about the size of an ordinary man's fist and thus represents as much concentrated energy as many high explosives.

As the heart is working satisfactorily you pay no attention to its actions because there is no way in which you will be aware of them. It is only when the heart begins to be deficient in its activities that we become concerned, because then we find ourselves unable to work without fatigue and breathlessness. To work properly, the heart must be supplied constantly with oxygen and with nutrition. It gets its own blood supply from the blood vessels which come off from the large arteries into which the blood is delivered.

If the heart has been properly conserved by suitable periods of rest and relaxation, by good nutrition and by freedom from infection, it comes to the age of 50 in fairly good condition. If, however, you have failed to have adequate rest, sufficient fresh air and sleep, the heart at 50 will be older than normal, and it will let you know that it is older by giving signs of its inability to carry on in complete measure.

Here are 10 heart commandments which you should keep to prolong your life:

1. Do not subject your heart to sudden, strenuous or prolonged physical exertion.
2. Eat regularly, slowly and temperately.
3. If you are excessively overweight, seek sound counsel as to how best to dispense with this form of heart handicap.
4. Try to avoid physical activity for at least 30 minutes after eating, particularly after the heaviest meal of the day.
5. Avoid emotional stress and strain. Worry is an important factor in its relation to heart strain.
6. By appropriate measures, keep your body as free as possible from so-called foci of infection.
7. Regular intestinal elimination is highly important.
8. Average not less than eight hours of sleep in a room abundantly supplied with fresh air.
9. Personal health demands a proper balance between work, play and rest.
10. A periodic examination may often reveal defects of which you are totally unaware. A stitch in time saves nine!

A BOOK A DAY

See Buyers Gyped by Modern Business—These Books Tell of Fakes Foisted on Consumers

The ultimate consumer is a great deal like the innocent bystander, in that his chief function seems to be to stand around helplessly and take one back of the ear every so often.

This, at any rate, is what I gather from a reading of "How to Spend Money," by Ruth Brindze, chairman of the Consumers' Council of Westchester county, New York, and "Counterfeit," by Arthur Kallet of 160,000,000 guinea pig fame.

The books follow lines which are more or less parallel, and the burden of their complaint is that the consumer, like W. C. Fields' sucker, never gets an even break.

Miss Brindze pleads for the establishment of official brands, or grading marks, by which a prospective purchaser of a can of peas, a mattress or a pair of stockings could know exactly what sort of quality the prospective purchase contained. She gives a good deal of useful information in order that the purchaser may make certain tests for himself and not buy blindly. Mr. Kallet is less hopeful. In fact, he declares that the consumer can never get an even break under a profit-motive economy, asserting that shoddy goods will be sold under phony labels as long as money can be made that way.

The books were printed by the Vanguard Press, Miss Brindze's book is priced at $2; Mr. Kallet's at $1.50.

Sheltered Life Hampers Boy's Development of Pugnacity

Once there was a boy who was ever so strange. He never flattened his nose against a plate glass window to gaze at catching gloves, or masks, or ash shaped into nice smooth bats. He wasn't jealous of his cousin who had a new hockey stick. He didn't get excited when two fellows began to pummel each other and roll in the gutter.

Naturally he had to enjoy his own company more or less because all the others liked the same things and couldn't understand a boy who wasn't more or less a roughneck.

He liked books and movies and fishing, or anything one could do alone or with another quiet fellow like himself. Oh yes, he was very, very strange.

He had just about a million brothers—under the skin—but he didn't know it. Neither did his parents. And neither did the parents of those other "odd" youngsters.

In time he grew up. So did the rest. And to him and behold, few of them are strange any more. There is Richard Jones, head of the testing-laboratory at the Institute, and Mark Smith, slated for a judgeship. There's Fred and Art and Samuel and William all getting their pictures in the paper for something or other most of the time.

Everyone of them courageous fighters in the world, of wits and science and law, with the courage of their convictions and their "moral" courage to preserve these strange ones who wouldn't use their fists or shiny up telephone poles to watch a baseball or football game.

Yes, in a way they were retreating from life during boyhood. Not from life exactly, but from life as they found it around them. Why do we think a boy isn't a man unless he likes to whoop and punch and do cartwheels and swat a ball?

Shyness Has Many Causes Some boys develop a sort of antisocial attitude (or just let us call it shyness) when babies. They seem to be born with an inability to face the sandpaper of life.

Others get it by criticism and ridicule when little. Still others are rendered sensitive by over-sensitivity. They are coddled, protected, treated like fine china and never learn what rough means. And they are kept apart, alone too long.

"They might get something," they might learn something," they might get hurt," they must be "good" boys. Then suddenly someone expects, everyone expects, these Dresden china boys to develop biceps and calves and pugnacity over night. They expect the small hermit to go out and lick all the Max Baers and Babe Ruths and Johnny Weissmüllers.

First we unfit them and then we expect them to right our mistakes. "Inherited" shyness is no one's fault, but certainly not the boy's. It is a mistake, too, to try to force any small child toward a courage he does not feel. "Roughage" is actually most successful if, applied in very small and rather gentle doses by people he likes, at first. It will gather its own momentum.

Abandon Block in Washington Area

Refusal of Leases by the Landowners Is Big Handicap

Hope of oil activity in the section northwest of Washington faded this week when the Prairie Mound Oil Company, which has been blocking land for the past 30 days in that section, was definitely forced to abandon the block due to the fact that several landowners would not lease their holdings to the company.

Leasing in this area has been going on for nearly a month, and the block, with the exception of a comparatively small acreage was ready for drilling operations to begin when failure on the part of several landowners to lease forced its abandonment.

Mr. Johnson, a representative of the oil company, states that an effort will be made to get a block together in the section north of Columbus, as a number of the larger landowners of that part of the county have offered leases on their holdings both in Hempstead and in Howard counties, and almost sufficient acreage has already been promised to make a block a certainty.

The interests which were to have financed a test well in the Washington area state that unless this second block is successful that they will make no other attempts to get acreage together in the north Hempstead section as several blocks which are already drilling elsewhere in the county.

In abandoning the block Mr. Johnson makes the following statement: "No oil company will drill in a territory that has no proven production unless it has a solid block on which to drill. My company does not require a very large block of acreage, but it does require that it be solid, for the

It is a mistake, too, to try to force any small child toward a courage he does not feel. "Roughage" is actually most successful if, applied in very small and rather gentle doses by people he likes, at first. It will gather its own momentum.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful 20, is in love with MICHAEL HEATHEROE who runs a riding school. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother, BETTINE, is a snob.

ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, has an unhappy love affair and is saved from suicide by young DR. JOHN KAYE.

SALLY MOON, loveliest coquette, tricks Michael into an engagement. Katharine hears he is to marry Sally and is broken-hearted.

She overhears two detectives asking for Michael's address and, thinking him in danger, rushes to warn him. Michael sets off with Katharine in her car; she tells her to love him and tells her to marry him. Impulsively Katharine agrees. They are married in an obscure little town. Then Michael goes back to face the detectives.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVI
THE grim-faced men met Michael on the steps. "You're Heatheroe?"

"I am," Michael faced them easily. There was a casual poise about the tall young man in the worn tweeds. The elder of the strangers said, "Born at Castle Donegal in Ballymonee?"

Michael shrugged his broad shoulders. "I was born in Ireland. My father never said—"

"Raised at Bar-X ranch, five miles out of a town called Watson's Gully, Montana?" the man pursued, quite as if the other had not spoken.

"What's this all about?" Michael asked, with a hint of steel in his quiet voice. "I find you fellows in full charge of my house, asking questions, taking possession without by your leave or—"

"Hold your horses, young feller!" the heavier, taller of the two intruders interrupted. "We've orders to find a Michael Heatheroe, aged 26, born to Francis Althor Drayton Heatheroe and his wife, Muriel, at Donegal in Ireland."

"Well, I've told you I'm he," said Michael in some impatience and, it would seem, disgust. "What about it?"

"Much about it, young feller me!" The detective rolled the words on his tongue with unctuous enjoyment of the flash of anger in his opponent's eyes. "You've come into money, and that's the straight of it. 'Tisn't often we get a job like this and get the back of y'er hand for it, like."

Mostly it's crooks we're after—well, it's a very well known firm, d'ye see?" He extended, between a rather soiled forefinger and thumb, a business card which Michael accepted with every evidence of distrust.

"Malley & Gerhardt, detectives," he read aloud. "All right Malley & Gerhardt, tell me about it."

"That's talking," approved the elder, motioning his partner to a seat. "They come to us in Omaha where we have our headquarters. They says, 'Find this young Heatheroe if ye can.'"

"Who's they?" demanded Michael impatiently.

"The English fellers. Two of them. 'Sollicitors,' they call themselves. Seems they'd been in Watson's Gully and nobody knew hair nor hide about where y'd taken off to. Said y'd picked up and beat it last year when y'd partner made off with the money—" "Oh, they did, did they?"

"We traced ye to Texas," continued Mr. Malley, crossing one plump leg over the other and allowing the ashes of his cigar to sift carelessly all over the floor of the porch. "We lost it there for a while. Y'd a job there for some months, saved y'r money and were sober, they said—"

Silent Picture of Fleeing Garbo

"Nix!" That was Greta Garbo's classic farewell to America as she sailed from New York for a vacation in Sweden. Going to great lengths to avoid newspapermen and the public, she tixed to the ship from Newark, N. J. An alert cameraman caught her peering at New York out of a taxi window, however.

Today's Pattern

Then Michael went into the shabby living room where riding crops and week-old newspapers mingled with pipes and dust and disorder over which Clarence Tipl's father, never seemed to gain control.

MICHAEL stared at the room with some distaste as he jiggled the telephone receiver. He was trying to fit into it the picture of Katharine with her smooth, fair head, her exquisite skin, her delicate shoes and frock; and the scent that always clung about her. It was fantastic. . . . the afternoon's happenings themselves were sheer fantasy. . . .

"Innecok 0021? May I speak to Miss Strykhurst, please?" He grinned to himself. That wasn't, really, her name. But only he and a shabby minister and a woman with floured hands were aware of it.

Katharine—Lady Carden. Lady Katharine of Donegal Castle. Would she like that? Oh, it was a pipe-dream, a bubble that would presently burst. . . .

Her cool voice on the telephone. A voice soft and sure and real like herself.

"Darling, this is me." She had to be careful—she knew that. "Yes," she said. "Yes."

"It's all right," Michael told her, speaking low. "It's perfectly all right. They were detectives, but they had good news for me. Can't tell you now."

"Michael, I'm frightened of what we've done." Her voice came hurriedly, almost broken. "I must see you. Oh, I can't talk now. Someone's coming. . . ."

He had to ring off then. Had to be content with that. Perhaps she would call him later.

He was going out into the stable yard, hands in pockets, brooding over the strange day he had just lived through, when Sally came rushing up to him.

"Michael, precious!" she cried. "Daddy says there's just no use your saying you can't get away. He's got a map to put in charge. We can leave for South America any moment."

He stared at her. He had forgotten her completely. But Sally would not allow herself to be so easily forgotten. She was a force to be reckoned with—and soon.

IF brother and sister both still are at the tot stage, this twin set I will make them: the center of attraction when they're out together. The boy's trousers could be of serge, the blouse of madras, and sister's dress of percale or seersucker. Patterns are sized 2 to 5 years. Size 4 requires 1-1/2 yards for each outfit, and 3-8 yard contrast for the two. Size 4 boy's blouse takes 5-8 yard of 35-inch fabric and 1-2 yard of 54-inch fabric for trousers.

A king once said of a prince struck down,
"Taller he seems in death";
And this speech holds true for now as then,
'Tis after death we measure men.
And as mist of the past are rolled away,
Our heroes who died in their tatters
gray
Grow taller and greater in all their parts,
Till they fill our minds as they filled
our hearts,
And for those that lament them,
Where's this relief,
That glory sits by the side of grief.
—J. H.

When the program committee of the Pat Cleburne chapter, U. D. C. chose the historic town of Washington as the scene for closing the activities for the year, it was indeed a happy and fitting choice, for a visit to this old town of Washington, whose stately dignity and grandeur of bygone generations holds the imagination enthralled, and brings into shadowy outline the ghosts of an age of chivalry and romance. For here still stands Arkansas' war-time capital—both Horstend county history and state history have been written in this building, its walls have heard the voices of some of the best known men of this nation, including Albert Pike, Augustus Garland, James K. Jones, Grandison D. Royston and many others for this venerable town gave to the nation three United States senators, two governors, two congressmen, and three distinguished jurists. In 1863, after the occupation of Little Rock by Union forces the seat of state government was removed to Washington and records were transferred from that city to this old courthouse in Washington.

One session of the Arkansas legislature was held here and it continued

Nudists Turn Warm Shoulders on Peepers at Fair

It just goes to show, girls will be girls. And for that matter, boys insist on being boys when it comes to peering through knotholes, whether the fences enclose baseball diamonds or a modern Garden of Eden. The group of comely nymphs shown above, who had just defied conventions and a chilly California breeze to inaugurate a nudist colony at the San Diego fair, had every reason to expect they'd attract crowds of Peeping Toms, as shown below. For the peckholes were left in the fence to attract fair visitors. Note that the old gent, second from left, even brought "a lunch box with him!"

Home Clubs

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH
Fred R. Harrison, Pastor

"The Upper Room" Revival at First Methodist church is progressing this week with good attendance and interest.

The service Friday night at 7:15 o'clock is sponsored by the Young People's Division of the church. The pastor's subject will be, "Life's Unnoticed Gains and Losses." The other services during the week have been well attended, and we are expecting a large number tonight.

Services will also be held Saturday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

Sunday is Pentecost and the meeting will close Sunday night. The goal for Sunday morning is as follows:

Every Methodist living in Hope to be present at the morning service.
Let nothing, except illness, keep you away. We want to fill the church to overflowing, and we will if all "the people called Methodists" in Hope will be present.

The pastor's subject at this service will be, "Do We Really Want Another Pentecost?"

The "Easter to Pentecost" revival effort will be brought to a close Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock, when the sermon subject will be, "The God of the Lost."

A cordial invitation is extended the general public to be present at any of these services.

Chaire Gribbs, great University of Pittsburgh basketball player, will join the Baltimore Orioles of the international league as a pitcher upon graduation.

LISSSEN, YOU DOPES! SOMEBODY'S GONNA HAFTA DEAL WITH QUEEN UMPA—SO LET HIM BE TH' GOAT.

YEAH, FOOZY'LL BE JUST AS BAD AS KING GUZ WAS!

—AN THEN, AFTER HE GETS HER SETTLED, WE'LL TAKE CARE OF HIM—

HEY—THERE HE GOES, INTO TH' PALACE, NOW...

OH, OH! HOLDIER BREATH! TH' SHOW'S ABOUT TO START!

Pie for the Grand Wizzer

DO YOU MEAN T'SAY KING GUZZLE HAS BEEN SWALLOWED UP IN AN UNDER-GROUND RIVER?

YES, GRAND WIZER—THAT IS RIGHT! HE IS GONE FOREVER FROM OUR SIGHT!

MY GUZZIE GONE? OH, HOW AWFUL!

HEH, HEH! THIS IS MY BIG MOMENT! NOW I CAN TAKE OVER 'THIS PLACE, AN' RUN IT T'SUIT MYSELF!

WASH TUBBS

GONE! HOMER LAKE'S GONE! WATSON'S GONE! $22,000 IS GONE! WASH AND EASY ARE WORRIED.

HE'S GOT OUR MONEY, AN' ALL WE GOT'S A BUNCHA AUTOGRAPHS. SAY, THIS LOOKS FISHY!

YOU BET IT LOOKS FISHY!

Holding the Bag?

I'D BET MY LIFE, POONER, THOSE AUTOGRAPHS ARE FAKES, WORTHLESS.

OMY GOSH! IT'S AS PLAIN AS DAY WE BIN GYPPED—SWINDLED!

HELP! POLICE!

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

YOU WANT TO SEE MIGGSY CAIN?

YES, AND SAY, DO ME A FAVOR, WILL YOU, PLEASE? HE THINKS I'M A DOCTOR...DON'T TELL HIM I'M NOT!

HOW'RE YOU FEELING, SON?

HE'S NOT DOING SO WELL, DOCTOR! NERVES AREN'T AS GOOD AS THEY MIGHT BE!

THE BOY WHO WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR HAVING HIM SENT HERE TO GET WELL, WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE VISITED MIGGSY YESTERDAY... HIS NAME IS FRECKLES!

HASN'T HE SHOWN UP?

Jerry's Vow

NOPE! HIS MOTHER AND DAD ARE WORRIED SICK! HE JUST DISAPPEARED, WITHOUT A TRACE.... GOSH, I CAN'T SLEEP UNTIL HE SHOWS UP!

THE BOY IS IN A SERIOUS CONDITION...HE'S AT A CRISIS, NOW...ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN, IF HE SUFFERS A SEVERE SHOCK!

THAT LEAVES IT UP TO ME TO LOCATE FRECKLES! AND I DON'T BOBBLE MY ASSIGNMENTS!!

THE NEWFANGLES (Mom'n Pop)

YOU SAY YOU WERE RUNNING AWAY FROM YOUR WIFE WHEN MY AGENTS NABBED YOU?

YEP, WE WENT HEAD-ON INTO A TELEPHONE POLE

AN AUTO ACCIDENT, EH? WHAT HAPPENED?

THINGS POPPED UP S FAST, I'M NOT SURE WHAT DID HAPPEN!

Speaking From Experience

BUT A COP WAS MIXED UP IN IT—I REMEMBER THAT!

WAS THE OFFICER BANGED UP?

HE WAS OKEY—BUT—HE WAS STARTIN' AN ARGUMENT WITH MY WIFE, JUST AS I BEAT IT!

Milan Ousted as Barons' Manager

Bill Pierre to Handle Club Until Successor Is Chosen

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(AP)—Release of Clyde Milan as manager of the Birmingham Barons was announced Thursday night by W. A. West, president of the Birmingham Baseball association.

A successor to Milan has not been chosen, and Bill Pierre, scout, will be in charge of the team temporarily. Pierre was recalled from a scouting trip in Florida and Bud Clancy, first baseman, will be in charge of the team until he returns.

Release of Milan was decided upon, West said, in an effort to put the team on a winning basis, following failure of several changes to bring an improvement in play.

Milan came to Birmingham as manager in 1930, succeeding Johnny Dobbs when the latter went to Atlanta. He led the team to Southern and Dixie championships in 1931 but since that year the Barons have not been championship contenders.

Milan will return to his home in Clarksville, Texas, Friday night and said he probably will not attempt another baseball connection this year.

There have been rumors that he would become manager of Chattanooga.

Before becoming a minor league manager, Milan was a star outfielder with Washington. Before joining the Barons, he had managed teams at Memphis and New Haven and was manager of the Senators for several months.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt didn't have enough faith in NRA to fight for it in the face of considerable opposition of long standing, a stunning U. S. Supreme Court decision, and public apathy.

His decision to abandon NRA and forsake the old code plan for a new skeletonized program was a decision not to make NRA symbolic of the whole New Deal and stake the fate of his administration on the least popular of the New Deal agencies.

In all probability, the president will yet go to bat on the supreme court issue. But he listened to a large group of advisers who told him he needed a sturdier stilt to ride to than war than the crutch reared by Gen. Hugh Johnson and Donald Richberg.

There were many who urged him to "go out and fight." Richberg and Johnson pleaded with him to ask congress for a new recovery act which would give the narrowest possible construction to the court's dicta on interstate commerce powers in the Schechter decision.

That would have meant a new network of codes, omitting only such obviously local enterprises as cleaning and dyeing shops, restaurants, retail stores, slaughter houses and barber shops.

It would have left the great bulk of business under NRA.

Legally and technically, there could be little valid objection, and the new act was revamped to meet the court's opinion as to delegations of power.

The decision leaves many doors ajar. The New Deal had every right to take such course and bring up a test case under the new law to try to find out just when the court felt interstate commerce had a "direct" effect on interstate commerce as distinguished from "indirect" effect, which, under the Schechter decision, provides no ground for federal regulation.

So few understood the limits of the decision, however, that any such course surely would have been popularly regarded as open defiance of the court.

Nevertheless, the night before the press conference at which Roosevelt disclosed his intention, Richberg, Johnson, and General Counsel Blackwell Smith of NRA were all sure that Roosevelt would revive the code structure for most of industry.

"Junk the Works"
The group of advisers whose viewpoint Roosevelt finally accepted was headed by Prof. Felix Frankfurter, close friend of Justice Brandeis and of many prominent young New Deal lawyers. The essence of their plea may be paraphrased as follows:

"Junk the whole works and build up substitutes that can be enforced and will achieve the objectives originally sought by NRA."

"NRA isn't being enforced and can't be enforced. Employers are chiseling on wages and stretching hours and many codes are ignored. NRA is loaded, both as to personnel and established policies, against labor and consumers."

"The only way labor standards can be enforced is by the labor movement itself, which can be strengthened through the Wagner bill."

"The supreme court decision leaves plenty of room for regulation of industry. But it would be foolish to jump into another far-reaching experiment without first taking a breathing spell, assaying the situation, and determining need and extent of public demand for it."

"To stake everything on NRA now is to imperil most of the rest of the New Deal, for which you can make a much stronger and more popular case."

This advice fitted in with Roosevelt's own private doubts as to NRA's value, doubts shared to some degree throughout the administration, except by NRA officials, who were emotionally devoted to their "holy cause" to the end.

It did not and was not meant to affect the president's fundamental belief that the nation's social-economic welfare depends upon a more liberal interpretation of the constitution's commerce clause. But it was accompanied by a conspicuous absence of any great popular demand for NRA continuance.

The Frankfurter group urged wage and hour requirements in government contracts and White House support for the Wagner bill. It also asked for expanded Federal Trade Commission power and activity as to trade practices, enforcement of the anti-trust laws, and "protection" of states where goods produced in states where low labor standards prevail—all of which may be in the cards.

Finally, it proposed a 'corporation profits tax, graduated on the amount of profits, which is hardly likely to become an administration measure at this session.

Roosevelt himself doesn't know what further steps he will take during this "stopgap" period. But it seems he is definitely leaning listening to Richberg and Johnson.

I used to be a Private Secretary

BEFORE I married I mean. Which was three years ago. But I still remember—and I'm never going to forget—how my boss ran his business.

I never saw such a successful man. When I first started to work for him, I thought he was just lucky. But a learned differently after I was with him for a while.

He never gave out a contract—never bought a thing, mind you—until he had studied all the bids made him, and compared all the points. I used to collect and file them for him, so he could get the facts when he needed them. So I know.

I know now, all right. That's the way I run my home. Only I don't have to collect and file my bids. I get them regularly in my newspaper. And do I study the advertisements carefully before I buy? You're telling me!

A Wedding Prayer

By Helen Welshimer

GOD, give them length of days to live together; Upon this earth; and lend them grace, we pray, To keep in dignity and peace and splendor This bright new house that they have built today. Oh, always may the new rooms be encircled By walls of love, and may the faith two hold, Each in the other, grow with time's long passing; We do not pray that they shall garner gold

FROM years to be... Far better to glean wisdom Of understanding, and to draw so near Each to the other that though storms may threaten Their love will keep them guarded from all fear. Oh teach them, God, on this their bridal morning To walk love's path with fearless eyes, brave, gay; To know that two who bear all things together Will build a house that shall not pass away.

Long's Foe Held on Fraud Charge

John Sullivan Is Accused of Operating "Con" Game

NEW ORLEANS.—(P)—John P. Sullivan, an anti-Huey Long leader and a dispenser of federal patronage for the Roosevelt administration in Louisiana, was charged Thursday in criminal district court with operating a confidence game. The charges were filed by an assistant attorney general. The charges, including several counts of alleged fraud, were based on Sullivan's real estate transactions as head of the Navillus Realty company. Sullivan said it was merely a political maneuver of Senator Long. When Long was running for governor, Sullivan supported him but soon after Long's election, they split politically until Sullivan became one of Long's arch foes.

Iron - Starved BLOOD

Thousands Feel Only "Half-Alive"

When you foolishly let work or worry get you down nerves soon begin to go ragged—every little thing seems to be the time to look out for trouble in the home. Most nervous troubles are brought on by allowing a run-down, debilitated condition of the body to continue and that's not only foolish but reckless, especially when there is such a simple easy, yet most effective way to straighten yourself out. Make This 3 Day Test Go to Ward & Son, or any first class druggist and get a bottle of Clements' Tonic—the new concentrated form of iron—Take two of these little tablets with a glass of water three times a day before meals. In 3 days you'll feel entirely different—better—new peace stealing all your trouble. Sleeplessness disappears—you'll enjoy a good night's rest again. Naturally and without any false stimulation you feel the benefits of Clements' Tonic. It enriches the blood and sends it coursing thru your body bringing new strength—steadying nerves—stimulating appetite and giving you the will to do things. Clements' Tonic is dispensed in your city by Ward & Son and all first class drug stores.

Mrs. John James and Miss Ethel Turner of Hope were the Sunday guests of Miss Mary Levins. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hunt of Rocky Mount spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bearden.

Presbyterian Auxiliary With Mrs. L. L. Pilkinton The June social meeting of the Presbyterian Auxiliary met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. L. Pilkinton with 10 members present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lee A. Holt, and two communications were read by Miss Kathryn Holt. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and the roll called, each member answering with a verse of Scripture. Mrs. Holt read a passage from the Bible as a devotion, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated. The treasurer, Miss Kathryn Holt, reported that the birthday offering amounted to $13.00. There was no new or unfinished business, so the meeting adjourned for an enjoyable social hour after which the hostess served delicious chicken salad sandwiches, pickles, olives and iced tea to the following guests: Mrs. Paul Dudley, Mrs. J. S. Conway, Mrs. Evelyn Hubbard, Mrs. J. A. Wilson, Mrs. W. H. Eiler, Mrs. Lee Holt, Mrs. Sallie K. Holt, Miss Kathryn Holt and Miss Bessie Trimble.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: John 16:7-11; Romans 8:10-11, 26, 27
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 9.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The fact of the Holy Spirit, and that it helps us and works through us, is to be distinguished from the doctrine of the Holy Spirit. One recognizes the fact of the sun. One experiences the warmth of its rays, and the joy and blessedness of its light, and all that it has meant to the work of the world, especially in times before mechanical invention had enabled the world to use so large a source of energy night into day. But this fact of the sun, and of the sun's influence and blessing, is very different from a knowledge of the laws of light and heat. Here one enters into a realm of theory and doctrine as well as of fact. It may be said, indeed, that what the sun is to us in experience does not depend upon our knowledge of many facts concerning it.

Much of this is true concerning the Holy Spirit. Jesus emphasized this mystic working of God's spirit on the souls of men when, in His discourse to Nicodemus describing the coming of the new life. He said, "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whether it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit."

In the story of Pentecost, when the disciples were gathered together in consecration and expectation, we are told that "there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind." The mysteries of that day are not all revealed or made plain to us, but the reality of what happened there and its effect have been manifest in the world through the history of the Christian church.

It would be well in our consideration, and in our teaching, of this lesson that we should dwell largely upon the fact and the power and glory of the experience of the Holy Spirit in the soul, leaving to theologians the doctrine and the theories, even as we may enjoy the sun, leaving to the physicist the science of light.

The passages in our lesson from John and from Romans are appropriately chosen with this in mind. They link this experience of the Holy Spirit in the soul with the message of Jesus to His disciples concerning the Comforter. They emphasize the work of the Holy Spirit, the Comforter, as that of convicting the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment.

The work of the Holy Spirit might be tested by these things, or we might test whether a man has really experienced the presence of the Holy Spirit by examining his life in these respects.

Has the Holy Spirit given to man a hatred of sin? Has it created in him the holy attitude of turning from sin to righteousness? And has it given him an enlightened judgment? If a man have not these things, it might be said that a human spirit of ignorance and perverseness is more evident in his life than the presence of the Holy Spirit. Again, there is the witness of the Spirit that brings to man the consciousness that he is a child of God—a peace of soul that is the deepest and truest experience of the Christian life.

Out of this experience of the Spirit, there comes a new consciousness of strength not in oneself, but through new resources of power. It was this that Paul meant when he spoke of his weakness, and of his prayer to be relieved of it, and in the answer to his prayer in the assurance "my strength is made perfect in weakness."

The potato originated along the Pacific coast to South America and was introduced to Europe by Spaniards.

LUCKY TROUT

Pretty Jo Eitten, winner of a woman's fishing contest at Lake Arrowhead, Calif. is pictured with one of her catches, a rainbow trout weighing eight pounds.

A burglar who broke into the office of a Berlin lawyer carried off seven volumes of the criminal code. When picked from there, the coffee berry looks like a red cherry, each berry containing two beans.

Student Expelled

Two students who broke into a chemistry storeroom at the college Saturday and obtained four pints of methyl alcohol.

Durwood Newman and James Garrett of Athens, roommates and lifelong friends, died in convulsions after drinking the fluid.

Dr. Tucker's announcement followed a report of the discipline committee which had investigated the affair. The report said one of the youths who died (Garrett) had confessed his part in the prank before he became unconscious. Dr. Tucker said the investigation would continue.

Six other students taken to a local hospital as a precautionary measure after the death of Newman and Garrett, were released Thursday. All had been suffering from fright and nervousness.

Joint funeral services for the two boys were held yesterday at Athens.

Twenty-five per cent of the inmates of Holloway prison, England, were committed for shoplifting. Statistics reveal that the average mental age of the United States is that of a 14-year-old youngster.

Bilious Attacks, Dizziness
"Bilious attacks," dizziness, spots before the eyes, a feeling of fullness after ordinary meals, belching up of gas, a dull, sluggish feeling—due to constipation—are usually driven away by a dose or two of old, reliable Black-Draught.
"I take Black-Draught for biliousness, dizziness, and when I feel dull, tired and stupid," writes Mr. M. L. Simmons, of Pickens, S. C. "It seems to cleanse the system and make one feel a hundred per cent better."
Thousands of men and women prefer this purely vegetable laxative.

Saturday Is PAY DAY

for
Hope Star Carrier Boys

Hope Star now employs 15 carrier boys. Each boy is his own merchant and should be paid each Saturday when he calls, as he is required to settle each Saturday night in full with the Hope Star for the papers he receives.

Carriers should not be expected to make repeated calls for collections, when the amount is so small, as the large number of deliveries they make, and the amount of time required in collecting from their customers does not permit this.

Hope Star deeply appreciates the patronage of every customer, and hopes they will be willing to make it a point to have the 10 cents ready for the carrier when he makes his first call.

Any failure on the part of the subscriber to pay is a direct loss to the young man. Although the amount is small in each individual case, very many such delays and losses could be a serious matter to the carrier that serves you.
